

Anxin-China Takes Actions against the Accidents in Dangerous Chemicals Transportation

A transportation accident occurred in Anyang, Henan on Oct. 20th. One died due to the leakage of 30 tons of diesel oil in a tank-car. The driver is only injured, but lots of diesel oil flowing on the road made a great potential risk. The local public security bureau and fire department rushed to the accident site immediately. And now the cause of the accident is being investigated.

After an hour as the case happened, Neihuang County police station and fire department received the alarm that a large-volume tank-car rolled over and its diesel oil leaked to make the potential risk of bomb, and then almost all the fire fighters and fire engines were appointed immediately to solve the dangerous case.

It's not difficult for us to assume, however, how chaotic and dangerous the site was then. Actually, Anxin-China always insists on that it's necessary to implement a whole-process monitor in the transportation of dangerous chemicals, for the reason that the vehicles carrying dangerous chemical almost means an unscheduled bomb on the road with threatening the safety of people's lives and financial properties.

Anxin-China always makes preparations to promise people's lives safe and bring a better living environment.
