

Life Safety is First in the Process of Security Production

People's Daily, the organ of the Chinese Communist Party, has recently published three constant review articles with obvious, powerful opinions, which defined the safety production as the unbridgeable bottom line. Specifically, local government departments at all levels are supposed to put the safety production in front of GDP increase, while the GDP increase could break down the whole social life environment and system without proclaiming any safety production.

Anxin-China always put much time in promoting people's safety production consciousness in China. For instance, Anxin-China carefully creates a perfect safety production surveillance model uniting surveillance, supervision and management into one, through building emergency rescue command center to reduce the burdens of some government departments.

In fact, the occasional incidents or accidents or even disasters in the safety production are always due to some certain human mistakes and errors more than the nature. It can be said that the personnel's serious dereliction of duty make the loss of financial properties and people's lives. Herein, Anxin-China's ISD system, the fabulous safety production surveillance system in the world, can detect all the potential risks and dangerous elements in the first place to truly promise the safety production in the basis.

Safety is always the first thing in any case. The society's economic development can never stand at the cost of human's lives. We should adhere to this principle, and strive for a harmonious social development in the bright future.
